A Message To The Trade ★ ★ ★

We are, of course, all happy that the war is finally over — even though complete peace has not yet come to the world.

The shortage of many items, however, still continues, and probably will through most of the year. Skilled labor too, is scarce. We must again, therefore, ask your understanding and cooperation if we fail to fill your orders as fully as we would like. We also ask in the interest of time saving, that you authorize us when necessary, to substitute with the nearest similar size or variety.

The price structure is still uncertain, and therefore, if it should be necessary to raise them in any instance above those here listed, we trust you will understand it is unavoidable. If in any instance they decline, you may be sure you will be given the benefit.
